GOVERNMENT INTERNS OVER 5,000 ENEMIES

Less Than 1,500 of These Have Been Arrested by Department of Justice.

THOUSANDS OTHERS DETAINED

Three Distinct Classes of German Subjects Held in Prison Camps. Thirteen Hundred Prisoners of War.

[Special to The Times-Dispatch.] WASHINGTON, June 23.—Since the war began it has become necessary for this government to intern somewhat more than 5,000 alien enemies and to place them in the custody of the War Department for safe-keeping, and for such useful occupation as international law and war-time agreements authorize.

An impression has gone forth that there are many more than 5,000 Germans of all classes held by the United States. It has been generally supposed, for example, that the Department of Justice alone had caused the arrest and internment of the many or more dangerous aliens, but the official records of the War Department disclose the fact that this department has delivered to the army less than 1,500 Germans and Austrians, found upon investigation to be a menace to the peace and welfare of this government.

It must not be assumed, however, that the Department of Justice investigated no more than 1,500 alien enemy cases. As a matter of fact, thousands of German subjects have been taken into custody during the past year, and their activities carefully investigated and all evidence regarding them passed upon in Washington. Only a fraction of those detained have been found to be dangerous characters and therefore subject to internment.

At the present time the government is holding three distinct classes of German subjects in military barracks. They are prisoners of war, alien enemies and undesirable aliens, commonly known in official circles as "commercial prisoners." Each of these groups has a different status under the law, a status which is recognized in their upkeep and in the character of work exacted of them.

The first class includes all prisoners of war. At the present time there are 1,316 of these at the war prison barracks, Fort MePherson, Ga. This number embraces all the prisoners taken by the United States other than those captured by the army in France. Those in France are being held by General Pershing. It will be determined later whether or not to ship them to America or whether to hold them in the field in order to have them available in the event of an exchange of prisoners.

All the prisoners of war at Fort MePherson were captured by the navy, for the great part of them were taken from the commerce raiders Prinz Krieger, the Kronprinz Wilhelm and the Appam, all three of which vessels were interned by this government prior to America's entry into the war. They were first held at Norfolk, later moved to Philadelphia, and when turned over to the army they were moved to the Georgia post. A few of them were taken from the submarine U-boat and from the small cruisers Lochus and Cormoran. Thirty-eight were recently captured by the destroyer Fanning when U-boat 33 was sunk.

ABOUT 2,500 DETAINED BY DEPARTMENT OF LABOR

A total of approximately 2,500 Germans were detained and interned by the Department of Labor when, at the outbreak of war, this government seized the German commercial vessels tied up in American ports. These aliens are not properly prisoners of war, inasmuch as they were not in either the military or naval service of Germany. They are merely undesirable aliens, under the immigration laws, but, as a matter of national safety, they have been sent to internment camps, and are guarded the same as prisoners.

The Department of Labor mobilized the commercial sailors at Hot Springs, N. C., more than a year ago. Recently an order was issued directing their delivery to the army on or before July 1. When this order is carried out the commercial prisoners will be sent to Fort MePherson and held in barracks now being built alongside those occupied by the prisoners of war.

JAILS ALL OVER COUNTRY

In the third class of Germans interned are all the alien enemies arrested upon presidential warrants by the Department of Justice. A total of 313 alien enemies of this group are held at Fort Oglethorpe, Ga., and 441 are held in war prison barracks at Fort Douglas, Ariz. In addition to these 1,234 alien enemies, it is understood that the Department of Justice has perhaps 100 more lodged in jails scattered about over the country. They will be turned over to the War Department just as soon as they can be assembled at some convenient place.

Also it is stated, the Department of Labor has a few groups of undesirable aliens at Ellis Island and other points awaiting the completion of the new barracks at Fort MePherson. This number will not exceed 200.

PRISONERS OF WAR SUPPORTED BY OWN GOVERNMENTS

Under international agreements, all prisoners of war are subsisted and clothed at the expense of their own governments. Germany, through the Swiss legation, provides for the Germans in this country, and the United States, through the Swiss minister at Berlin, takes care of the Americans held in Germany, only a relatively small number of Americans have been interned by Germany. The number is around 260, not including the prisoners taken in the recent offensive.

The commercial prisoners are subsisted largely by the North German Lloyd and the Hamburg-American Lines. The money is turned over to this government and is expended by the commanding officers at the prison barracks. No German held by this government is allowed any money. He must make requisition for what he wants, and if it is allowed the purchases are made by American officers and the food and clothing delivered to the prisoner.

Alien enemies arrested and interned at the instance of the Department of Justice are a direct charge upon this government. They are housed, fed and clothed at this country's expense. Although Germany may arrange to subsidize them or their friends may contribute to that end if they deal through the War Department. No money can be delivered direct to interned aliens, food or any other commodity. Everything of the kind must pass through the hands of the War Department.

All classes of prisoners, excepting commissioned officers and such others as are physically unfit for labor, are required to perform work necessary for their comfort and for the upkeep of their prison barracks. Prisoners of war, other than officers, have been required, in addition, to work for the public service and are being required to do this. Some of them are engaged in road construction; others in building barracks, and others in the trades.

Interned enemy aliens cannot be held for consensory work, except for their own comfort, but may, with their consent, be authorized to work in the case of prisoners of war. The labor performed by prisoners shall have no connection with the operations of the war, nor shall they be required to work more than eight hours a day except in farming, when the work day is for ten hours.

When employed on work that is necessary for their comfort or the upkeep of their barracks, prisoners will receive no compensation. Other work will be paid for by the government or by private interests if the prisoners are farmed out by the government. The money earned is held by the War Department for the use of the prisoners.

An impression prevails that Germans held in this country are allowed the best of ration and are not required to contribute anything to their maintenance. The War Department denies this. All of them are well fed and comfortably housed, but they are expected to do any work that may be assigned to them.

AMERICAN SUFFRAGISTS NOT TO DECLARE TRUCE

Mrs. Catt Confident of Enough Votes to Put Amendment Through Senate Thursday.

NOT FOLLOW MRS. PANKHURST

President of Suffrage Association Declares Women Want to Vote in Order to Serve Their Country. Leaders Optimistic.

WASHINGTON, June 23.—There is no chance that the suffragists will adopt the advice of Mrs. Pankhurst to drop all suffrage work for the duration of the war and devote their time to war activities. That was made plain tonight in a statement by Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, predicting the passage of the suffrage amendment in the Senate Thursday.

"Our poll is confidential, and all pledges always have been carefully guarded," said Mrs. Catt, president of the National American Woman Suffrage Association, "but I may say we feel certain of a sufficient number of votes to put the amendment through."

When asked what Mrs. Pankhurst's advice, Mrs. Catt replied: "The suffragists of the United States will no more accept Mrs. Pankhurst's advice on this point than they accepted her example of winning suffrage by militancy. The truth is, Mrs. Pankhurst, like other foreigners, does not understand conditions in the United States."

"Nowhere else in the world could such a curious anomaly be found as men demanding exemption from military service because they are alien enemies, and yet, at the same time, be voters in all elections because their State gives the vote on first papers."

"Millions of men are going to Europe and leaving voteless women behind. We cannot postpone elections as Great Britain and Canada have done by a mere act of Parliament. The men patriots may be chiefly in Europe and the women patriots voteless, but the elections will go on just the same. It is because American women clearly understand their own country and the danger it runs, through the disfranchisement of loyal women, that they regard the continuation of their campaign as the most patriotic duty they can perform."

"Women have asked for votes before as a right denied, now they are desperately struggling for them, not to serve themselves, but their country. No sooner had the Supreme Court decided that the child-labor law was unconstitutional than little children were drawn back into the cotton factories of the South, and in the North the efforts have been numberless and insidious in legislatures to destroy the standards of labor for women and children—from all directions came evidences of the menace to morals created by the abnormal conditions of war."

"From all sides comes the call for votes to hold the civilization we have and to stabilize conditions during this abnormal period. The United States must no more lose her war at the polls than in the trenches. We know that a majority of the Senate see the necessity of suffrage for women at this time."

A PACIFIC PORT, June 23.—Captain S. Kawi, commander of a Japanese liner arriving here, told how mules from a torpedoed vessel killed several members of the crew in their frantic efforts to climb aboard rafts and boats. "We were in a convoy of thirteen vessels, from New York for London," Captain Kawi said. "Off the Sully Islands two submarines showed up and sank two British vessels of the convoy, each carrying horses and mules. "Our after gun went into action immediately, and one of the submarines

The horses gave up without much fuss, but the mules swam to the side of the launches and boats and tried to kick and bite their way up to safety. They kicked out with tremendous vigor, and I saw a number of swimmers' heads broken. "Terrible pandemonium reigned for more than two hours, but most of the men on the torpedoed steamer were saved."
